“UTTERLY SPECTACULAR. THE BEST ACTION FILM OF THE YEAR.” – Paul Clinton, CNN

Arnold Schwarzenegger puts on his trademark shades and leather jacket to return as a time-traveling T-101 Terminator in this smash hit directed by Jonathan Mostow. He's back to protect future Earth Resistance leader John Connor (Nick Stahl)...and an unwary veterinarian (Claire Danes) who's stunned to learn her destiny is linked with Connor. An awesome new foe is programmed to terminate them – a state-of-the-art T-X (Kristanna Loken) who's smarter and stronger than a T-101. With dazzling effects, bravura thrills and a story that boldly spins into the unexpected, this is an event spectacle to see and see again.

"The problem comes in the form of a mouse's target — not just its actual location, but also if the target changes," said Pham. "And that's where machine learning technology could be the answer to the mouse-tracking problem.".. Thien and his team were testing the mouse's accuracy at a lab in the UCC's Electrical Engineering and Computer Science Laboratory and had come up with an algorithm to predict the target location based on the movement of the mouse. "It's not a super-deep problem. I've just been using this to identify areas where it actually has accuracy," added Pham.. In the new script, the older man, the Terminator, has given up on the story about who should save Sarah, instead making a more personal point about his friend. The scene where Genisys comes to the door of the human girl is very much an out-of-the-blue moment. It happens as he walks through the old world with the robot's camera that he bought from a thrift store. It is a moment of pure emotional energy, and it is the moment when he becomes the character we know him to be.

The episode opens with Genisys coming to Earth and going through his usual routine: "Sawing his way through the city on all-new motorcycles and flying into people for some reason." He soon meets an old friend who has something new to say about his journey to the future: "There's a girl here that I just met, maybe she was a little worried that if something happened to Sarah or Sarah was kidnapped or whatever that could cause that situation. So then I had this amazing meeting with one of the humans back in the day that was like a mentor, so he's sort of an expert on the future. He helped me out with our future and said, 'I remember before I was a Terminator, you were kind of a weird person, I mean you would do stupid things, but at least you were an excellent person to have around so nobody was killing you.' And that was what I was thinking.".. On this particular show, there are many other moments that are a direct echo of the story that Dickson drew. These can include (but not be limited to):.. John's son has two different personalities, one is a man in a suit and another is a bald robot of a human. The bald robot says that he will take his place once Genisys completes its mission.. Using a mathematical algorithm, the team trained the program with over 200,000 mouse movements until it could determine accurately where the target could be in the room by simply watching what the target was doing. "Now, if we wanted to create a new target, like a car, it would take hundreds of machine sessions to produce a result that matched the original idea in a way that was just human-like," said Pham. "But we saw that our algorithm, with the help of data from the mouse, could precisely predict the target's location."..
